Today's independent LIEN HO PAO cites "authority sources" to effect most likely candidate for party Secretary Generalship is now O.K. Yui, with Chiang Ching-Kuo and Cheng Yen-Fen likely designates for Deputy Secretary General positions. Tang Tsung, according to same sources, is to be made Chief of Provincial Party committee.

Today's press comment makes even clearer that President, while technically postponing public declaration of his intention to have third term, has left no doubts in minds of party members that he will be available for draft when National Assembly meets in 1960. Column by CHINA POST "news analyst", in past frequently vehicle for inspired comment, said May 19 that President "admits he has said on number of occasions that he is against revising constitution. serve another...term." (1) Action under "temporary provisions effective during period of national crisis" appended to constitution and (2) constitutional interpretation by grand justices. Columnist explains President's opposition to amendment of constitution was based largely on fact "any revision of constitution here in Taiwan would tend to limit its representation only to Taiwan." Column concludes it is now "crystal clear" President will be asked to stay on, but that President will not announce decision "until National Assembly meets next March."

Lineup of new standing committee includes four "new faces": Wang Shu-Ming, Tang Tsung, Huang Chi-Lu, and Huang Chao-Chin. They take places of Shen Chang-Huan, departing for Madrid as Ambassador, Ma Chi-Chuang (G. John Ma), new head of combined service forces, Justice Minister Ku Feng-Hsiang, and Cabinet Secretary Chen Hsueh-Ping. Election of Huang Chao-Chin, with old member Chiu Nien-Tai, give standing committee two Taiwanese members. Dropping of Chen Hsueh-Ping and Ku Feng-Hsiang also noteworthy. Chen is reportedly strong Chen Cheng man. Ku has been under attack from within and without government for some time because of alleged poor situation in Justice Ministry and court scandals.
